PRESIDENT JOHN F. KENNEDY
1917—1963

DEDICATION TO PRESIDENT JOHN F. KENNEDY

Some men enjoy wealth of property, freedom of thought, equality among neighbors, abundance of food, religious freedom. Some men do not.

There are men who live and die in defense of these rights. There are others who wage a constant war against them.

As members of an institute of higher learning in a democratic republic, we respect, honor and defend the rights and liberties which we feel are God-given. Likewise, we respect the men who uphold these principles and seek their propagation for the benefit of all mankind.

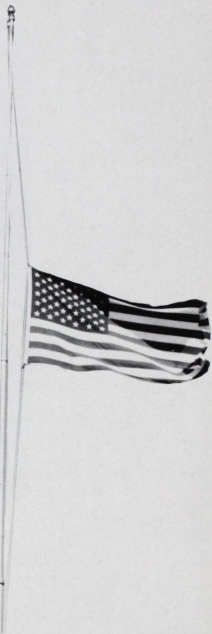

Our thirty-fifth President was such a man. As educated leaders we too should strive to be as this man was. He led the free world in a fight for world peace, so should we; he tried to teach the American people that God loves a black man; so should we; he sent a corps of dedicated people on a world-wide mission of mercy and good will; so should we; he spoke what he thought and fought for what he believed in, so should we.

When the President lost his life at the hands of an assassin in downtown Dallas, he left us a tremendous job. He also left us advice: have the courage of your convictions and ask what you can do for your country.

It is now up to us, as educated citizens to carry on the work of this man and to propagate it in every corner of the world.

And so as we begin to dedicate our lives to carrying on the works of this man, we find no more fitting manner in which to begin than by dedicating the nineteen hundred sixty-four edition of the TOWER to John Fitzgerald Kennedy, father, husband, President, martyr.

Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu

Madame Nhu, surrounded by the curious, states her opinion of the American way of life.

Daniel Riordan, Hilltopper editor, poses a question to Madame Nhu during an interview with the Viet-Nameese first lady, Zuik, behind and Mark Walter, left, listen intently for Madame Nhu's reply.

With a rustle of rich brocade and a swish of scented silk, Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu swept into the U.S. the week of October 11th, 1963. She was accompanied by her handsome, 18 year-old daughter, Le Thuy, and preceded by some of the worst press notices since Tokyo Rose. Although not even her bitterest critics would doubt her courage, the petite sister-in-law of South Viet Nam's President Ngo Dinh Diem did have some fears about her 21 day coast-to-coast visit. Going to the U.S., said she, would probably be like walking into "a cage of lions." Her visit to Austin was one of the most enjoyable of her entire trip.

Small Colleges Will Remain Important

by Father Benedict Ashley

FATHER BENEDICT ASHLEY, O. P., lecturing on the future of the Catholic liberal arts college to a packed Dining hall.

Father Benedict Ashley, OP regent of studies for the Chicago province of the order opened his talk, "The Future of the Liberal Arts in a Catholic College," by recalling his previous engagement at the University of Texas where the topic was concerned with society's need of God, at which time he mentioned that we could arrive at truth of this through operational logic.

Concerning the view that small colleges will go out of business, Father mentioned that he didn't think this would happen because the undergraduate needs contacts, needs to feel a part of something, all of which the student probably wouldn't or couldn't get in a larger college. Since most educational money goes to the graduate school, we may see eventually the larger schools cater only to graduate students. The small school can thus work better with its undergraduate students and not make them secondary to research, as happens in a larger or graduate school. Specialization in school should not begin too early—there's no need of this since our system is not like that of the Soviet Union where a person is trained to do one and only one job. In our democratic system, a man is and should be trained so that he can take part in church, state, and other affairs; besides this, man should be considered as man and not as a pawn of the state. A liberally educated person in a democratic society will tend to see his place in society and will eventually specialize in something to better mankind and himself by his specific contribution, whereas the Communist can't see himself in society—he merely operates as one of many for the good of the state because of this lack of liberal thought inspiration. We see that the best of us goes into our vocation in life, that our salvation comes through our efforts, so by being educated liberally we can better our contributions to society.

INTERNATIONAL-LATIN

The International-Latin American Club is a dual purpose organization. As an International Club it has as its goal the strengthening of relationships between students of the Americas. This aim is fulfilled through such club functions as the Coffee Hours, where students who are learning to speak Spanish or who wish to learn it will get help with the language. Other functions include the Fiesta Dance where the orchestra always plays with a Latin beat, guest speakers on the history, customs, culture, and politics of the Latin American countries, and educational films on the same subject.

As a Latin American Club, ILAC helps promote unity among the Latin American students. It accomplishes this through its monthly meetings, special projects, and its close association with the Latin American club of Our Lady of the Lake College.

Membership in the club is not limited only to Latin Americans, but rather it is open to everybody.

AMERICAN CLUB

THE LATIN WAY OF LIFE

The vanguard of the program was an illustrated lecture by Dr. Terence Grieder, Ph. D., of the University of Texas Art Department. Dr. Grieder spoke on Latin American individualism as reflected in the arts. He traced the emergence of the individual from early times to the present, and the accompanying effects as indicated by changes in art. Dr. Grieder included such points as the early pre-eminence of the group art, the nebulous separation between the arts and the crafts, the role of the Church in the ideals of art, and the European influence on South American Art. One of his more significant statements was that the group, in Latin America, exists solely for the support of the individual. Dr. Grieder concluded with the idea that artists generally prostitute their talents to the public taste, i.e., they paint what sells. The second lecture was given by Reverend Robert Menard, NM, who spoke on the Church in Latin America. Father made several interesting points, which would be of value to those wishing to increase their background knowledge of Pan-American culture. The most interesting of the three discussions during Latin American Week was a discourse on the political, religious and philosophical thought of Latin America by two students from Mexico, Jaime Garcia Granados Lasquetty, and Jose Maria Abascal.

Philosophy, politics and religion were discussed at the seminar which climaxed Latin-American Week.

PANEL COVERS "CRISIS IN PANAMA"

Crisis in Panama was the topic of the panel discussion sponsored by the International Latin American Club. Giving the historical situation leading up to the present crisis, Bro. Fabius explained that the U.S., by treaty in 1903, paid Panama 10 million dollars for the Canal Zone and a rent of a quarter million dollars per year. In 1936, the rent was raised to a half million dollars per year. From Panama's point of view, the situation was undesirable. "It created a state within a state" and split the country in half. There was the omnipresent economic inequity between the "Zonians" and Panamanians. Finally, during World War II and after, the surge of anti-colonialism struck Panama. In 1953 Panama had three grievances: (1) they wanted the rent raised from a half million, (2) they decried the unequal competition between the Zone and Panama and (3) they wanted equal pay for Panamanian and American workers doing the same job. By 1955, a settlement had been reached in all three grievances. The economic aspects underlying the crisis were presented by Armando Castillo, who proclaimed Panama an "economic colony of the U.S.," since Panama receives most of her imports from the U.S. and must sell most of her exports in the U.S. According to Mr. Castillo, Panama receives 21 million dollars for her exports and pays 125 million dollars for her imports, giving a balance of payments deficit of over 100 million dollars. Luis Luis, in presenting the political situation, noted that both the U.S. and Panama are facing National elections this year and therefore the heads of state must come to an agreement that will satisfy the public. That is, they must not make concessions that would injure the national pride in their respective countries. He suggested that one of the causes of the present situation is communist infiltration in the high schools and universities since 1952. President Chiari of Panama, he asserts, must get tough with the U.S. or the Communists will gain influence, and if they do the powerful national guard of Panama may depose Chiari. Any solution concerning the canal must be, he affirms, in accord with the strategic requirements of the U.S., the national aspirations of Panama, and U.S. ideals of peaceful settlements. It must also alleviate the economic disparity that exists between Panama and the Canal Zone, and it must be an agreement that would be satisfactory in an election year.

COMPUTER CENTER

The major pieces of equipment are the IBM 1620 Central Processing Unit and the IBM 1622 Card Reader Punch. These two units operated together constitute the Computer. Other items are a Keypunch machine and a Sorter. The computer center is located in the former lobby of the Science building. A new door and air conditioning units were recently installed. With the establishment of a Computer center on campus, various courses are being revised to include computer-orientated problems. This is especially true in physical science and engineering courses.

Tony Golda listens attentively as Professor Jack Schandua explains the function of the Sorter.

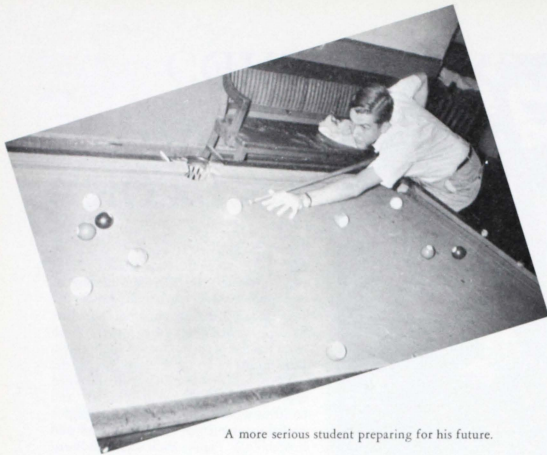

Bill Thurin works out his math problems on the IBM 1620 Central Processing Unit.

THE ZOO STORY

The Zoo Story was put on stage by the SEU Drama Department. This play involves the chance meeting of two people in a park who discover, after much discussion, that neither person understands the other. Each man has been so engrossed in his own little world that he believes his is the only possible one. The gulf between the two islands is never bridged and confusion and misinterpreted thoughts and feelings erupt into violence and a stabbing. Frank Zuik and Edward Skinner put much feeling into their performances under the careful tutelage of Bro. Dunstan Bowles, CSC.

A more serious student preparing for his future.

POOL,
PUBS,
AND ...

Students and friends gather at the local pub to count the words on the label.

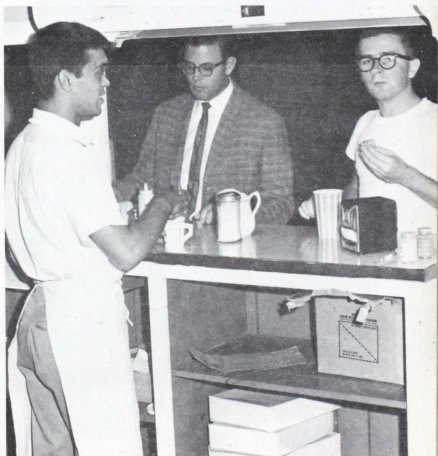

Fellow students gather at the Snack Bar for coffee and to discuss the day's activities.

THE BASEMENT

This side of campus life plays a big part in the college lives of lots of students... when they're not studying.

The Basement, which is located in Holy Cross Hall, is the gathering place when students want to take a break. The Snack Bar is open to all University students. It specializes in hamburgers, French fries, malts, pies and coffee. The Snack Bar is operated by the Texas Club as a public service and all profits are used to maintain the recreational facilities in The Basement of Holy Cross Hall. Books, toilet articles, school supplies, and athletic equipment can be purchased in the Bookstore.

Mario Mazziotti serves up the Snack Bar's aromatic coffee to Tony Golda while Rich De Voe munches on his second doubleburger.

Doctor McGann of Harvard Lectures on the United States foreign policy in Latin America. Dr. Thomas McGann, Ph.D., assistant professor and chairman, board of tutors in history at Harvard University was sponsored by the Alpha Chi Honor fraternity. Dr. McGann said that changes were becoming quite evident in Latin America. He gave a pat on the back to the Good Neighbor policy saying that in the past it had worked well but had to be abandoned because it became obsolete.

He gave added support to the Peace Corps and encouraged its growth in Latin America.
